

The IARIW is co-sponsoring a session on the economics of income and wealth as part of the XXI International Academic Conference on Economic and Social Development that the Moscow-based National Research University Higher School of Economics (HSE) is holding this spring. Because of the coronavirus pandemic, the conference is being held electronically. The IARIW-sponsored session will be held from 1:00 PM to 2:30 PM on May 12, 2020 Moscow time. IARIW members are welcome to participate in the session by Zoom. For details on how to participate contact Ilya Voskoboynikov at ilya.voskovboynikov@gmail.com

SECTION A. MACROECONOMICS AND GROWTH

Tuesday, May 12 from 1:00–2:30pm

Moderators: E. Gurvich (EEG) and I. Voskoboynikov (HSE University)

Online, In English

Session A-52: Economics of Income and Wealth (organized collaboration with International Association for Research in Income and Wealth)

Moderator: M. de Haan (Statistics Netherlands) (TBC)

1. Productivity convergence trends within Russian industries: firm-level evidence
A. Tsvetkova (Bank of Russia) and E. Bessonova (Bank of Russia, HSE University)
2. The contribution of intangible assets to the growth of sectors of the Russian economy or what innovations are active?
K. Bobyleva (HSE University)
3. Sources of change in domestic output in the Russian economy, 2003–2015: an input-output structural decomposition analysis
E. Baranov (HSE University), D. Piontkovski (HSE University), E. Staritsyna (HSE University)
4. Analysis of the impact of macroeconomic policy instruments on indicators of economic development of Uzbekistan based on the “Input-Output” tables and the social accounting matrix (SAM)
K. Muradova (CEDR)

A podcast of this session is available on the official YouTube channel of the XXI April HSE conference here.