The Conference of European Statisticians (CES) established the Task Force on Measuring Human Capital in 2013. The resulting guide produced by the Task Force considered the conceptual development of human capital measurement and the development of experimental human capital and education satellite accounts consistent with the SNA. In addition the guide investigated the discrepancies between the cost-based and income-based approach; summarized efforts to measure human capital, and recommended next steps. This presentation will summarize key points in the 2016 Task Force produced guide.
